"The Sunday Boston Globe" of October 29, 1972, included an article on the Rock abundant with slights and impertinences for my country.¹

I inscribe the article here following to my dear old friends GAVIN R. FERGUSON and A.C.F. BEALES, with these words:

If there be any in this assembly,
any dear friend of England's...
If then that friend demand why... this is my answer: Not that I loved England less, but that I loved Spain more.

I hope that every reader of these pages shall find this only natural.

BOSTON, All Saints' Day, November 1st, 1972.
